Dr. Hoyt Leaves C.I.A. For 'North Star' Post

A YONKERS High School alumnus who has served his Country for the last 13 years with the Central Intelligence Agency has just joined a private research organization.

He is Dr. John S. Hoyt Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt of 117 Briggs Ave., who holds a BA degree from Syracuse University, a Master's degree from George Washington University and a Ph.D. from American University in Washington.

The engineer supervised economic research for CIA and also coordinated economic intelligence from various government branches in his role of executive secretary to an interdepartmental committee of the federal government.

His new work is director of the economics and management sciences division of North Star Research and Development Institute in Minneapolis, Minn., where Dr. Hoyt lives with his wife and their two daughters.
